Renkus-Heinz Celebrates New Year With Accolades

ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC, CRITICS VOTE FOR NEW TECHNOLOGIES

FOOTHILL RANCH, CA – January 2008. Two of Renkus-Heinz’s most recent loudspeaker systems – one from either end of the physical and application spectrum – have won accolades from industry experts in 2007.

The WFX New Product Awards, presented by Church Production Magazine and Worship Facilities magazine, recognize the most innovative new building and technology products geared toward the house of worship market. In 2007, Renkus-Heinz SG121 Series Loudspeakers were voted “Best Audio Products: Large-Format Loudspeaker.” The award cited the Sygma Line’s combination of renowned Renkus-Heinz audio quality, engineering innovations such as the unique Complex Conic constant-directivity horns, and long-term reliability with market-leading RHAON (Renkus-Heinz Audio Operations Network) technology at exceptionally competitive price points, with a choice of three integral amplification modules.

In its December issue, Audio Media magazine chose the all-new Renkus-Heinz VERSYS VL3 compact, self-powered high power line array system with RHAON for its “Gear Of the Year” round-up, noting that it’s the “first such system to come with the fully-integrated RHAON package”. Editor Paul Mac enthused: “If this really is next-gen line array come to take up the baton, bring it on”.

US National Sales Manager David Rahn commented: “These two totally unexpected honors were a great way to end an exceptionally busy year for Renkus-Heinz – we are thrilled.”
